

Eurovision; JK's thoughts

Wednesday, 10 May 2006

I had no real interest in the Eurovision Song Contest when I was asked by my friend David Liddiment, in his new role as Head of Entertainment at the BBC, to take over the search for a British entry in 1995.

My only thought was